NEW YORK, Dec 16, 2008 (BUSINESS WIRE) -- Richard Fleischman & Associates (RFA), the premier provider of outsourced technology and IT services, and the trusted technology advisor to more than 400 firms in the alternative asset space, today announced the availability of Safe Harbor facilities and services. In uncertain times such as these, RFA comes to market with Safe Harbor's suite of business continuity planning (BCP) and disaster recovery (DR) solutions that uniquely combine physical business facilities, expert professional support and technologies that assure service levels, as well as concierge-caliber convenience and comfort.

RFA's Safe Harbor solution was designed in response to heightened interest in corporate governance and investor due diligence. RFA's offering puts smaller funds on a level playing field with larger funds when vying for investment in this tough market. RFA's comprehensive technology platforms deliver world class disaster recovery and crisis management services across a wide range of price points. Each client has access to meeting and conferencing facilities, gym and showers, a choice of two cafeterias and ample parking. The data center and offices feature dedicated UPS power with emergency generator backup and multiple major Internet service providers.
